

ABSTRACT

Provided is a system, method, and program for rendering network addresses of files 5 capable of being downloaded over a network on an output device. A list of previously accessed network addresses is generated. An access time rating is associated with each network address indicating a relative time to access a file from the network address.